Bye Bye Birdie (2024) Off Broadway Musical Theatre

Directed by Leah Jensen

I stage managed Off Broadway Musical Theatre's production of Bye Bye Birdie at the outdoor New Hope Performance Center. This production was performed in the Beverly and John Lord Knight Performance Hall. It ran for eight performances over two weekends. There were 33 cast members ranging from age 11-70, nearly half of whom were youth performers.

Some unique aspects of stage managing this production:

- This show was performed in an outdoor performance space at a public park, which included problem-solving inclement weather conditions and frequent nearby distractions
- Ensuring comfort and safety for all performers through fight and lift calls

Stage Management Experience

I created the rehearsal calendar as well as the calls for what would be worked on during each rehearsal.

Adventures of the Elemental (2024) CLIMB Theatre

Directed by Caitlin Featherstone

I stage managed CLIMB Theatre's production of Adventures of the Elemental which was performed for elementary aged students at the Outdoor Ed Festival at Cedar Lake Farm Regional Park in New Prague. This fun 20-minute show was written to teach about the importance of reducing, reusing, and recycling and was sponsored by Scott County. There were four performances and three actors.

Stage Management Experience

This show had minimal technical requirements and had a very short rehearsal process. Some of my responsibilities as the stage manager included troubleshooting mic and sound issues, helping to pull props, and writing rehearsal reports, one of which is shown below.

Directed by Megan Liesmaki

Production Stage Manager: Grace Wright

I was one of the assistant stage managers for The Hobbit at the University of Northwestern- St. Paul, and I worked under stage manager, Grace Wright. This production was performed in the Patsy Miller Studio Theater. It ran for fourteen performances over three weekends. There were 30 cast members and 8 crew members.

Some unique aspects of assistant stage managing this production:

- We had 13 rehearsals before starting tech
- Included many special theatrical elements including fight choreography, complex makeup and prosthetics, and consumable props

Assistant Stage Management

My area of focus as an ASM for The Hobbit was props. I coordinated with co-props designers, Belle Waggoner and Drew Stutz, to ensure all props, including many consumables, were ready to be used in the show.

Below is a sample of the runsheet I created for the props in The Hobbit:

Production Stage Manager: Gregory Lund

I was one of the assistant stage managers for Anything Goes at the University of Northwestern- St. Paul, and I worked under stage manager, Greg Lund. This production was performed in the Beverly and John Lord Knight Performance Hall. It ran for eight performances over two weekends. There were 37 cast members and 14 crew members.

Some unique aspects of assistant stage managing this production:

- Five of our lead characters were double cast
- We worked with Canadian choreographer, Stephanie Graham, who led a two-week intensive in-person and worked on the rest of the rehearsal process over Zoom.

Assistant Stage Management

My area of focus as an ASM for Anything Goes was costumes. I oversaw the execution of all of the costume elements of the show including quick changes, taking notes during costume parade, and communicating costume maintenance needs, as well as hair and makeup elements.

Below is a sample of the runsheet I created for the costume changes that happen during the show:

General:

1. Tonight, we finished our stumble-through of the show beginning with “Anything Goes.”
2. Alita Robertson and Joylee Christensen gave a props presentation.

Musical/Vocal:

1. We will be adding bars 122-141 back into Anything Goes.

Choreography:

1. See Musical/Vocal Note #1.

Scenic:

1. Is there a plan for covering the bolts on the red support post?
2. Iris- We would like to cover the ballet bars being used for the railings with pool noodles.

Props:

1. Can we get loose luggage for Sailor D, Gabe Hager, in Act I Scene 2? He should have 1 piece of luggage on one arm and 2-3 hat boxes on the other.
2. Can we glue the bottoms of the champagne glasses to the stems?
3. We need a key and key ring for the Purser (D. Stutz) for the opening and locking of the cell bars in Act II.4.

Costumes:

1. Carter Lambert, Simon Luckow, Jaden Nybakken, and Parker Schmidgall have quite a bit of choreography that happens on their knees. They would like to wear knee pads for at least this song. The knee-pads we currently have are black and may show through their costumes. We should also talk about if the knee pads should be white and on the outside of the actor's costumes to protect the costumes. Do we have any updates on the plan for knee pads for the sailors in Buddie Beware?

Costume Designer: Mia Nowacki

I was the Assistant to the Costume Designers for 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, working with designer Mia Nowacki, assistant designer Ava Hunter, and director Mitch Geiken to design the costumes for the show.

I helped craft the preliminary costume looks for each character, pull options from our existing stock, determine what we would need to purchase and create from scratch, assist with costume fittings, communicate with other departments, and maintain all of the costumes.

Costume Experience

I was responsible for creating the costume plot to communicate to stage management and the actors what each actor was wearing at what time.

Sample of costume plot for ‘Twas the Night Before Christmas.

The costume team collaborated with co-props designers, Alaina Posavad and Joylee Christensen, to design Christmas stockings for two of the characters. I embroidered the name “Emily” on the gold stocking.

Embroidered name on Emily's stocking.

Costume Experience

I also had many costume technician responsibilities including adding bells to hats, attaching beads to a dress, repairing costumes, cutting fabric, and various other sewing tasks.

Sewed jingle bells to the elves' hats.

Sewed rows of beads onto Calliope's dress where they had broken off.

Secured upper and lower sections of an elf's dress to each other where the seam had been ripping.

Anastasia the Musical (2023)

University of Northwestern- St. Paul

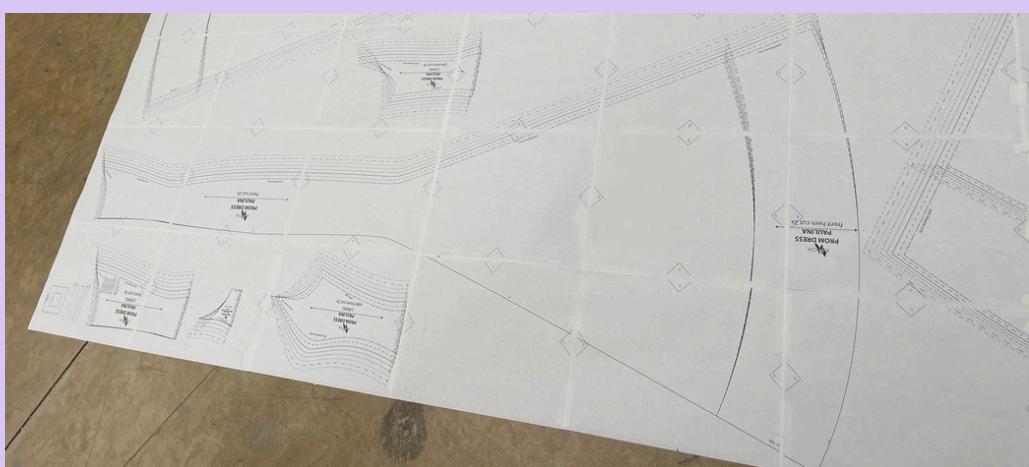

Directed by Jennifer Hunter

Costume Designer: Sarah Christenson

I worked as a costume technician on Anastasia under the direction of designer and shop manager, Sarah Christenson. I pieced together, cut, and pinned a pattern for Anya's dress, pulled costume pieces for ensemble members, made minor costume fixes, and helped organize the costume shop.

Pieced together pattern for Anya's dress.

Costume Experience

Cut and pinned Anya's dress pattern to a mock-up fabric.

I also learned a variety of sewing skills and applied them to my work as a costume technician, including serging, gathering, and hemming.

Serged fabric for Anya's royal dress.

Gathered fabric for The Dowager Empress' robe.

Costume Experience

Measured and pinned Alexei's pants to be hemmed.

Costume Experience

The crew of UNW Theatre's production of These Shining Lives was commended by the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival Region 5 for Efficiency in Scene Transition. I helped with six different costume changes during each show, many of which were less than 30 seconds long, so efficiency was an integral part of my role.

This production was directed by Daniel McLaughlin and was performed in the Patsy Miller Studio Theater. Under the direction of scenic designer, Nathan Farley, I outlined and painted the colored squares on the floor of the stage to give an existing checkerboard floor a 1980s look.

Little Women (2022)

University of Northwestern- St. Paul

Directed by Jennifer Hunter

Scenic Designer: Alita Robertson

I operated as a scenic technician under the direction of the scenic designer, Alita Robertson and stage carpenter, Jay Schueller. This production was directed by Jennifer Hunter and was performed in Knight Performance Hall.

Working with a team of seven other people, I assembled many of the walls for the set for Little Women.

Scenic Technician Experience

I also helped paint the stairs and railing of the March house, including adding streaks of white to create a more wooden, textured look.

Finished staircase for the March House.

Under the direction of the technical director, Iris Dodge, another member of the team and I installed the brackets for and hung the curtain that created a “stage” area for the March sisters’ play.

Curtain in the March living room.

Scenic Technician Experience

I worked on constructing the staircase of the March house by drilling the floorboards, adding and removing wheels for transport, and preparing it to be painted. I also spaced and installed the balusters on the railing pictured below.
